

ABSTRACT

A rotary product processing device that has a frame made of end plates and at least one sidewall of one piece and unitary construction that encompasses a product processing chamber that is rotatively supported by a plurality of bearing cradles that are 5 each of one piece, unitary and homogeneous construction. At least one of the bearing cradles also functions as a thrust bearing, as does a conduit mounting hanger.